TESTING QUESTION: What should I know about Egyptian currency as a tourist?

Using lawyer

As a tourist in Egypt, it is important to know that the local currency is the Egyptian Pound (EGP). Cash is essential, especially in local markets and small shops. It is advised to exchange money at licensed banks or currency exchange centers, not on the street. While larger hotels and restaurants accept credit cards, local eateries and shops usually do not. It is recommended to carry smaller denominations of cash for convenience. Using a Forex card for international travel can be a smart choice as it allows you to carry multiple currencies securely and provides better exchange rates compared to cash or credit cards [doc1].
